Thadingkyut Kids Art Workshop

CFK organized a 3-day Thadingkyut Kids Workshop for the long school holiday program. 53 kids, divided into 8 groups, took part in the project. To accommodate the workshop, we secured space at a Hindu temple near the gallery. The goal is to help kids appreciate cultural diversity and express their creations and thoughts freely.

Day 1

During the first workshop day, the children collaborated to discuss traditions and traditional festivals of the ethnicities in Myanmar. They learned about the festival's history and shared memories and wishes for Thadingyut.

Day 2

On the second day, the focus shifted to a group painting project. Each group internally discussed how to shape and incorporate all the information they had and wanted to include.

Day 3

On the last day, the children finalized their art projects and presented them in front of all the groups. Every child demonstrated their best effort and enthusiasm throughout the entire 3-day workshop, actively participating in every conversation.
